YEDC Participates IN TWO INTERNATIONALLY REKNOWN “TRADE SHOWS”

Lynn Dubajic, the Executive Director of the Yorkville Economic Development Corporation, attended the four-day International Council of Shopping Centers (ICSC) Spring Convention held May 23rd through May 26th, 2004. The event, which took place at the Las Vegas Convention Center, is the largest gathering of real estate and retail professionals in the world. Over 36,000 individuals attended the Convention including Commercial Developers, Brokers, Retailers and Organizations (such as the YEDC) representing communities. The attendance number was a record setting 14% increase over last year's attendance. The convention featured educational sessions, a Trade Exposition, and a Leasing Mall.

Through a unique partnership with the State of Illinois (DCEO), and the Illinois Development Council, Lynn Dubajic also attended the CoreNet Global Summit at Chicago's Hyatt Riverwalk on Sunday, May 16th. This Global Summit was the world's largest conference of corporate real estate executives, which represented a tremendous opportunity by allowing the YEDC access to more than 3,000 corporate facilities decision makers.

The YEDC utilized both events to discuss development opportunities with site selectors, perspective retailers, developers and brokers; and to present information and showcase sites in Yorkville. This is the third year the Yorkville Economic Development Corporation participated in the ICSC Convention, and the first year the YEDC was present for the CoreNet Global Summit.
